

Rental accommodation offering support with daily living

Some people would like to live in rental accommodation in a supported environment. It is important to note that the Residential Tenancies Act would cover the rental arrangements but not the provision of support services. You should have a clear understanding about what legislation governs the agreement signed and what services will be provided with the fees you are asked to pay. It is also important to have clear written information about whether any services can be suspended with no cost for you (for example, if you have a period of absence from the village due to health, family or social reasons).

Consumer and Business Services (CBS) publish the fact sheet Lifestyle Villages, which contains information that is applicable to this housing type - www.cbs.sa.gov.au/. CBS may also be able to assist with further information about rental housing offering assisted living – tel. 131 882.

This type of accommodation is not subsidised by the Government. However, residents may be eligible for Rent Assistance from the Australian Government if they are recipients of income support payment, such as the Age Pension or Disability Support Pension. They may also be eligible for assistance from Housing SA to pay the bond.

If you are receiving or are likely to receive home support and care services subsidised by the Australian Government, consider the options and costs to make sure your accommodation and lifestyle choice is sustainable in the long term.

This is a quick reference list. No endorsement from Catalyst Foundation (including Seniors Information Services) is to be implied.
